What's moving in AI.

AI NEWS

AI just took over the follow-up.

Every 2026 real estate AI roundup now centers on the same use case: automated follow-up and database nurture. Why that one? Because it's the marketing task agents can't sustain by hand. The stat the whole industry keeps citing: 80% of deals need five or more follow-ups, but most agents quit after one.

— FOR YOU. FOR THIS ROOM. —

Your best marketing is the people who already know you.

WHAT AGENTS CHASE

New. Cold. Expensive.

- Ads to strangers.
- Leads that convert at 1%.
- Starting from zero every time.

WHAT ACTUALLY PAYS

Your database, marketed to.

- People who already trust you.
- Converts 15-25%, not 1%.
- Worth ~$624 a head, per year.

The Problem

WED AUG 5

Why marketing is the business now, where agents fall short, and the engine that fixes it.

T

WEEK 02

Enough Times

WED AUG 12

Consistency is marketing: the 33-Touch, the numbers Ferry and Kinney live by, the engine that never forgets.

WEEK 03

The Right Thing

WED AUG 19

Message and brand: the one thing you're known for, said the same way everywhere. Origin builds it.

D

WEEK 04

Enough People

WED AUG 26

Fill the database: gather the leads and grow the audience your engine markets to.

• YOU ARE HERE

— THE PROOF —

The numbers don't lie.

6.37% CONTACT-
TO-CLOSE

Kinney / MREA: about 1 deal for every 16 people you stay in real contact with.

33 TOUCHES A YEAR

Keller's threshold to stay in someone's active database. Below it, they forget you.

~$624 PER
CONTACT

What each database relationship is worth per year (Tom Ferry), if you keep in touch.

SET → MET → TAKEN → SOLD

Ferry's weekly funnel. Track it and the deals stop being a mystery.

Two of the biggest coaches, one conclusion: consistent contact is the marketing that pays.

Follow-up isn't a chore. It's marketing.

The word "follow-up" makes it sound like nagging. Reframe it: every touch is a marketing impression to someone who already knows you, the warmest audience you will ever have. And most agents ignore it.

THE RELUCTANT PROSPECTOR

"Prospecting" feels like begging, so the database sits there, cold and untouched.

RESULT · THE WARMEST AUDIENCE IN REAL ESTATE, WASTED.

THE CONSISTENT MARKETER · THE WINNER

Sees every touch as marketing. Stays in front of their people, on repeat, all year.

RESULT · THE DATABASE COMPOUNDS INTO PREDICTABLE DEALS.

Same list of people. One agent calls it prospecting and avoids it. The other calls it marketing and runs it.

Marketing is frequency.

No message lands the first time. Marketing has always run on repetition, the old "rule of 7" says a buyer needs about seven impressions before they act. Real estate has its own version, and it is bigger than you think.

THE MARKETING LAW

- A prospect needs ~7 impressions to act.
- Repetition builds familiarity.
- Familiarity is what becomes trust.

THE REAL ESTATE VERSION

- Keller: 33 touches a year to stay active.
- Fewer than that, and they forget you.
- The agent they remember is the one they call.

THE POINT

Consistency isn't a virtue, it's the mechanism. Say it enough times, or it never lands.

Marketing that stops isn't marketing.

The database only pays if you stay in it. Every time you go quiet, your people cool off, drop out of your active list, and the deals stop landing 60 to 90 days later. Consistency is the whole return.

THE SPRINT

SURFACE: A burst of calls in a slow month, then nothing.

REAL → People warm up, then forget you. Back to zero.

THE SEASONAL AGENT

SURFACE: Touches the database at the holidays, and that's it.

REAL → Way under 33. Out of the active database, out of mind.

THE ENGINE

SURFACE: Steady touches, every week, all year long.

REAL → Stays above 33. The 6.37% actually shows up.

WHY IT'S THE MAKE-OR-BREAK

You cannot sprint your way to consistency. The agents who win didn't try harder, they made it automatic.

Set this many. Close this many.

Ferry's funnel, run for this room. Held appointments convert at roughly one in three.
So work backward from the closings you actually want.

To close 2 deals a month: hold about 6 appointments (set ~8 to 9, since ~70% show), fed by consistent touches to your database. Want 4 a month? Double it.

SET

8-9 a month

Appointments booked from staying in front of the people who already know you.

MET

~70% show up

Roughly 6 held. The rest reschedule or ghost. That is normal.

You won't out-willpower it. The engine will.

Nobody sustains 33 touches a year on memory and mood. That is not a discipline problem, it is a systems problem. Clara runs the follow-up marketing for you, drafted every single morning.

BY HAND

- Depends on your mood and your calendar.
- First thing to drop when you get busy.
- Guilt, then a database gone cold.

CLARA · THE ENGINE

- 16+ touches a year, drafted daily.
- Runs whether you show up or not.
- Keeps every relationship above the line.

THE WHOLE POINT

Ferry and Kinney tell you to touch 33 times a year. Clara is how you actually do it.

Say it enough times. Watch it compound.

Consistent marketing to a warm database is the highest-return, lowest-cost growth in real estate. Do it by hand and it's exhausting. Let the engine do it and it's inevitable.

Touch [consistently] · Stay [active] · Appointments [compound] · Deals become [predictable]

THIS WEEK

Pick your number, write it into the tracker, and let Clara run the touches. Next Wednesday: Say the Right Thing. The Marketing Engine, Week 3.
